Sociology 268 - Theory and Practice in Student Leadership

DETAILS

Course Name: Sociology 268 - Theory and Practice in Student Leadership

Date/Time: Tuesdays & Thursdays from 5:30pm – 6:50pm

Description: Sociology 268 is a small, interactive class with about 12-14 students. During the class, students will gain general knowledge of leadership theories and will then explore 2 specific models that apply directly to college students. From there, students will learn about various leadership concepts and skills including communication, group dynamics, power, etc. The class is very interactive and attendance is very important. Students at any level of their personal leadership development are welcome to take this course. Registration is by instructor's permission only, so students can email shannon.jayne@stonybrook.edu to schedule a 15-minute meeting to discuss the class in more detail.

Shannon Jayne
Assistant Director for Student Life and Leadership
Stony Brook University
222 Student Activities Center
Stony Brook, NY 11794-2800
Phone: 631.632.7320 Fax: 631.632.6756